PROSPECTUS SUMMARY

The following summary is qualified in its entirety by the more detailed information and financial statements, including the notes thereto, appearing elsewhere in this Prospectus or incorporated by reference herein.

THE COMPANY

Aspen Technology, Inc. (the "Company" or "AspenTech") is a leading supplier of off-the-shelf software products and services for the analysis, design and automation of manufacturing facilities by companies in the process industries, including the chemicals, petrochemicals, petroleum, pharmaceuticals, pulp and paper, electric power, and food and consumer products industries. Process manufacturers use AspenTech's solutions, a family of software products and services, to design, operate and manage manufacturing processes more efficiently, safely and profitably.

AspenTech provides a sophisticated, integrated family of off-the-shelf software products for use across the entire process manufacturing life-cycle, from "off-line" applications used primarily in research and development and engineering to "on-line" applications used primarily in production. The Company's off-line software is used by engineers on desktop computers primarily to simulate and predict the performance of manufacturing processes in connection with the design of new facilities or processes and the analysis of existing facilities or processes. AspenTech's on-line software, which is connected directly to plant instrumentation, enables the real-time adjustment of production variables in response to constantly changing operating conditions to improve process efficiency, planning and scheduling. AspenTech's product offerings are classified in four categories: modeling; planning and scheduling; information management systems ("IMS"); and advanced process control ("APC") and optimization. Chemical engineers who work in the off-line research and development and engineering stages of plant and process design and analysis are the principal users of modeling products, while chemical and control engineers who work in the on-line stages of real-time plant operation are the primary users of IMS, APC and optimization software and services.

The Company's modeling software mathematically simulates and predicts the performance of manufacturing processes under varying equipment configurations and operating conditions, enabling chemical engineers to design cost-effective, efficient processes that comply with environmental and safety requirements. AspenTech's planning and scheduling software is used by petroleum refiners and chemical manufacturers for feedstock selection, product mix optimization, logistics, scheduling, process unit optimization, and investment planning. AspenTech's IMS software is used by process manufacturers to gather and analyze large volumes of real-time plant operations data in order to better understand actual performance within a complex process manufacturing facility. IMS software allows customers to compare actual performance with theoretical benchmarks derived from models and to make appropriate adjustments on a real-time basis. AspenTech's APC and optimization software products are designed to enable customers to achieve superior operating performance by continuously adjusting key process variables to maintain optimal target levels under constantly changing conditions.

The Company initially became a provider of IMS software and services through its acquisition of Industrial Systems, Inc. ("ISI") in May 1995, and expanded its IMS capabilities through its acquisition of Setpoint, Inc. ("Setpoint") in February 1996. AspenTech significantly enhanced its APC and optimization software offerings through the Setpoint acquisition as well as its acquisition of Dynamic Matrix Control Corporation ("DMCC") in January 1996. AspenTech further extended its family of on-line solutions to include economic planning and scheduling capabilities by acquiring the assets of Bechtel Corporation's PIMS (Process Industries Modeling System) business in December 1996. In separate transactions in September 1997, AspenTech acquired NeuralWare, Inc. ("NeuralWare"), a provider of neural network and related technologies that AspenTech intends to incorporate into its APC, process modeling and IMS software, and Special Analysis and Simulation Technology Limited ("SAST"), a provider of dynamic simulation and operator training services and applications.

AspenTech combines its integrated family of off-the-shelf software products with design and implementation consulting services in order to market a complete solution to its customers. The Company significantly strengthened its on-line consulting services through its acquisitions of DMCC and Setpoint in early 1996, and expanded the global reach of its consulting services organization with the acquisition in October 1996 of the process control division of Cambridge Control Limited ("Cambridge Control"). AspenTech believes its ability to offer a complete solution of both industry-leading software and sophisticated process engineering expertise is an important source of competitive differentiation.

The Company was founded in 1981 and is a Massachusetts corporation. At the 1997 Annual Meeting of Stockholders to be held in December 1997, the Company's stockholders will consider, among other things, a proposal to reincorporate AspenTech in Delaware. AspenTech's executive offices are located at Ten Canal Park, Cambridge, Massachusetts 02141, and its telephone number is (617) 949-1000.

THE OFFERING

All of the 283,350 shares of Common Stock offered hereby are being sold by the Selling Stockholders. The offered shares were issued to the Selling Stockholders pursuant to (i) the Agreement and Plan of Reorganization dated as of August 1, 1997 between the Company, the Company's wholly owned subsidiary AT Acquisition Corp., NeuralWare and the former stockholders of NeuralWare, under which a portion of the offered shares were issued in exchange for the outstanding capital stock of NeuralWare, and (ii) the Share Exchange Agreement dated as of August 28, 1997 between the Company, SAST, The SAST Corporation Limited, S.A.S.T. Process Limited, Special Analysis and Computing Services Limited, SAST, Inc. and the founders of The SAST Corporation Limited, under which the remainder of the offered shares were issued for all of the outstanding capital stock of The SAST Corporation Limited.

Under the agreement with respect to the acquisition of the capital stock of NeuralWare, Inc., the Company is obligated to keep the Registration Statement in effect until all of the shares issued in exchange for such capital stock and offered hereby (a) have been sold or (b) a period of ninety days has elapsed since the date of this Prospectus. Under the agreement with respect to the acquisition of the capital stock of The SAST Corporation Limited, the Company is obligated to keep the Registration Statement in effect until all of the shares issued in exchange for such capital stock and offered hereby (a) have been sold, (b) can be distributed to the public pursuant to Rule 144 under the Securities Act, or (c) have been otherwise transferred to third parties in transactions resulting in the shares being freely tradeable.

The Company will not receive any of the proceeds from the sale of shares by the Selling Stockholders. See "Use of Proceeds."

 "AspenTech" is a trademark of the Company.

RISK FACTORS

THIS PROSPECTUS CONTAINS AND INCORPORATES BY REFERENCE FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS WITHIN THE MEANING OF SECTION 27A OF THE SECURITIES ACT OF 1933 AND SECTION 21E OF THE SECURITIES EXCHANGE ACT OF 1934. THE COMPANY'S ACTUAL RESULTS COULD DIFFER MATERIALLY FROM THE RESULTS CONTEMPLATED IN THE FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS AS A RESULT OF A NUMBER OF FACTORS, INCLUDING THE RISK FACTORS SET FORTH BELOW.

Dependence Upon Increased Market Penetration. Increased use in the process industries, particularly the chemicals and petroleum industries, of software and services for the analysis, design and automation of process manufacturing plants in general and of the Company's software products and services in particular is critical to the Company's future growth. The Company believes that a number of factors will determine its ability to achieve increased market penetration. These factors include product performance, accuracy of results, ease of implementation and use, breadth and integration of product offerings, reliability and scope of applications. Failure of the Company to achieve increased market penetration in the process industries would substantially restrict the future growth of the Company and could have a material adverse effect on the Company's business, operating results and financial condition. See "Item 1. Business--The AspenTech Advantage" and "--Strategy" in the Annual Report.

Fluctuations in Quarterly Operating Results. The Company's operating results have fluctuated in the past and may fluctuate significantly in the future as a result of a variety of factors, including purchasing patterns, timing of new products and enhancements by the Company and its competitors, and fluctuating foreign economic conditions. In addition, the Company ships software products within a short period after receipt of an order and typically does not have a material backlog of unfilled orders of software products. Therefore, revenues from software licenses in any quarter are substantially dependent on orders booked in that quarter. Historically, a majority of each quarter's revenues from software licenses has come from license contracts that have been effected in the final weeks of that quarter. The revenues for a quarter typically include a number of large orders. If the timing of any of these orders is delayed, it could result in a substantial reduction in revenues for that quarter. Since the Company's expense levels are based in part on its expectations as to future revenues, the Company may be unable to adjust spending in a timely manner to compensate for any revenue shortfall and any revenue shortfalls would likely have a disproportionate adverse effect on net income. Prior to fiscal 1996, the Company experienced a net loss for the first quarter of each fiscal year, in part because a substantial portion of the Company's revenues is derived from countries other than the United States where business is slow during the summer months and also in part because of the timing of renewals of software licenses. The Company expects that these factors will continue to affect its operating results and that the Company may experience net losses in the initial quarter of future fiscal years. See "Item 7. Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations--Quarterly Results" in the Annual Report.

Concentration of Revenues in the Chemicals and Petroleum Industries. The Company derives a significant portion of its revenues from companies in the chemicals and petroleum industries. Accordingly, the Company's future success is dependent upon the continued demand for modeling software by companies in the chemicals industry, and for planning and scheduling, IMS, APC and optimization software and services by companies in the chemical and petroleum industries. The chemical and petroleum industries are highly cyclical. The Company believes that economic downturns in the United States, Europe, Japan, Asia and South America and pricing pressures experienced by chemical and petroleum companies in connection with cost-containment measures have led to delays and reductions in certain capital and operating expenditures by many of such companies worldwide. The Company's revenues have in the past been, and may in the future be, subject to substantial period-to-period fluctuations as a consequence of such industry patterns, as well as general domestic and foreign economic conditions and other factors affecting spending by companies in the Company's target process industries. There can be no assurance that such factors will not have a material adverse effect on the Company's business, operating results and financial condition. See "Item 7. Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations--Results of Operations" in the Annual Report.

Product Development and Technological Change. The market for software and services for the analysis, design and automation of process manufacturing plants is characterized by continual change and improvement in computer hardware and software technology. The Company's future success will depend on its ability to enhance its current software products and services, to introduce new software products and services that keep pace with technological developments, and to continue to address the changing needs of its customers. There can be no assurance that the Company will be successful in developing and marketing new and enhanced products and services, or that its products and services will continue to address adequately the needs of the marketplace. Like many other software products, the Company's products have on occasion contained undetected errors or "bugs." In addition, because new releases of the Company's products are initially installed only by a small number of customers, any errors or "bugs" in those new releases may not be detected for a number of months after the delivery of the software. If the Company's products do not perform substantially as expected or are not accepted in the marketplace, the Company's business, operating results and financial condition would be materially adversely affected. See "Item 1. Business--Product Development" in the Annual Report.

Dependence on Key Personnel. The Company's future success depends to a significant extent on Lawrence B. Evans, the Company's chief executive officer, its other executive officers, and certain key technical, managerial and marketing personnel. The loss of the services of any of these individuals or groups of individuals could have a material adverse effect on the Company's business, operating results and financial condition. None of the Company's executive officers has entered into an employment agreement with the Company, and the Company does not have, and is not contemplating securing, any significant amount of key-man life insurance on any of its executive officers or other key employees. The Company believes that its future success also will depend significantly upon its ability to attract, motivate and retain additional highly skilled technical, managerial and marketing personnel. Competition for such personnel is intense, and there can be no assurance that the Company will be successful in attracting and retaining the personnel it requires to continue to grow and operate profitably. See "Item 1. Business--Employees" in the Annual Report.

Product Liability. The sale and implementation of on-line applications by the Company may entail the risk of product liability claims. The Company's APC and optimization software products and services are used in the design, operation and management of manufacturing processes at large facilities, and any failure by the software at those facilities could result in significant claims for damages or for violations of environmental, safety and other laws and regulations. The Company's agreements with its customers generally contain provisions designed to limit the Company's exposure to potential product liability claims. It is possible, however, that the limitation of liability provisions contained in the Company's license agreements may not be effective as a result of federal, state or local laws or ordinances or unfavorable judicial decisions. A successful product liability claim against the Company could have a material adverse effect upon the Company's business, operating results and financial condition.

Migration to Microsoft Windows; Emergence of Other Standards. AspenTech believes that operating systems such as Microsoft Windows, due to their interoperability and customization capabilities, are increasingly the preferred choice of certain of its customers. AspenTech has developed Windows 95 versions of its software products and Windows NT versions of most of its core products. It has developed a Windows NT version of ASPEN PLUS which is in test stages and is developing a Windows NT version of RT-OPT. There can be no assurance of customer acceptance of Windows versions of all products, or that they will be competitive with offerings from the Company's competition. Although the Company does not believe that there are currently other operating platforms which are in demand by customers, there can be no assurance that customers will not migrate to or require compatibility with other systems such as Java. The Company is also aware of customer concerns that its products be able to handle the date change on and after the year 2000 and has established a compliance program to test and, if necessary, modify new versions of its products. Any such failure or delay in developing and releasing new operating systems versions or testing or modifying its software to be year 2000 compliant could affect the Company's competitive position or lead to product obsolescence in the future. See "Item 1. Business--Product Development" and "Competition" in the Annual Report.

Dependence on Proprietary Technology. The Company regards its software as proprietary and relies on a combination of copyright, patent, trademark and trade secret laws, license and confidentiality agreements, and software security measures to protect its proprietary rights. AspenTech has United States patents for the expert guidance system in its proprietary graphical user interface, simulation and optimization methods in its optimization software, a process flow diagram generator in its planning and scheduling software, and a process simulation apparatus in its polymers software. The Company has registered or applied to register certain of its significant trademarks in the United States and in certain other countries. The Company generally enters into non-disclosure agreements with its employees and customers, and historically has restricted access to its software products' source codes, which it regards as proprietary information. In a few cases, the Company has provided copies of the source code for certain products to customers solely for the purpose of special customization of the products and has deposited copies of the source code for certain products in third-party escrow accounts as security for on-going service and license obligations. In these cases, the Company relies on nondisclosure and other contractual provisions to protect its proprietary rights.

The laws of certain countries in which the Company's products are distributed do not protect the Company's products and intellectual property rights to the same extent as the laws of the United States. The laws of many countries in which the Company licenses its products protect trademarks solely on the basis of registration. The Company currently possesses a limited number of trademark registrations in certain foreign jurisdictions and does not possess any foreign copyright or patent registrations. The Company derived more than 50% of its revenues from customers outside the United States in fiscal 1995 and 1997 and approximately 45% of its revenues from customers outside the United States in fiscal 1996.

There can be no assurance that the steps taken by the Company to protect its proprietary rights will be adequate to deter misappropriation of its technology or independent development by others of technologies that are substantially equivalent or superior to the Company's technology. Any such misappropriation of the Company's technology or development of competitive technologies could have a material adverse effect on the business, results of operations and financial condition of the Company. The Company could incur substantial costs in protecting and enforcing its intellectual property rights. Moreover, from time to time third parties may assert patent, trademark, copyright and other intellectual property rights to technologies that are important to the Company. In such an event, the Company may be required to incur significant costs in litigating a resolution to the asserted claims. There can be no assurance that such a resolution would not require that the Company pay damages or obtain a license of a third party's proprietary rights in order to continue licensing its products as currently offered or, if such a license is required, that it will be available on terms acceptable to the Company. See "Item 1. Business--Proprietary Rights."

Competition. The Company's software products compete with software tools that are internally developed by companies in the process industries and with certain process modeling, planning and scheduling, IMS, APC and optimization software products that are sold by a number of commercial suppliers. AspenTech's primary commercial competitors in the process modeling software market are Simulation Sciences Inc., Hyprotech, Ltd. (a subsidiary of AEA Technology plc) and Chemstations, Inc. In the planning and scheduling market, the Company competes with Bonner and Moore Associates, Inc., Haverly Systems, Inc., Chesapeake Decision Science, Inc., and Ernst & Young Wright Killen. In the IMS market, AspenTech primarily competes with Oil Systems Inc. and Biles and Associates (which entered into an agreement to be acquired by Simulation Sciences, Inc. in August 1997) and, to a lesser extent, with distributed control system vendors such as Honeywell Inc. In the APC and optimization markets, AspenTech competes with the industrial automation and control business unit of Honeywell Inc., which primarily sells distributed control system hardware, as well as with Pavilion

Technologies, Inc. and the Simcon division of ABB Asea Brown Boveri (Holding) Ltd. Several small competitors, including Treiber Control, focus exclusively on the APC market. There has also been a number of acquisitions and consolidations which expand the breadth of product and service offerings by certain of these competitors including the acquisition of both Interplant Consulting, Inc., a provider of real-time database applications, and Measurex Corporation, a provider of control systems in the pulp and paper industry, by Honeywell, Inc.; Hyprotech, Ltd. by AEA Technologies plc; and Visual Solutions, Inc., a provider of simulation software and services, the on-line technology division of Raytheon Engineers Contractors, Inc. and Biles and Associates, a provider of information management and control solutions, by Simulation Sciences, Inc. Emergence of a new competitor or the consolidation of existing competitors could adversely affect the Company's business, operating results and financial condition. Certain competitors also supply related hardware products to existing and potential customers of AspenTech, and may have established relationships that afford the competitors an advantage in supplying software and services to those customers. The Company's continued success depends on its ability to compete effectively with its commercial competitors and to persuade prospective customers to use the Company's products and services instead of, or in addition to, software developed internally or services provided by their own personnel. In light of these factors, there is no assurance that the Company will be able to maintain its competitive position. See "Item 1. Business--Competition" in the Annual Report.

Management of Growth. Since fiscal 1990, the Company has experienced substantial growth in the number of its employees, the scope of its operating and financial systems, and the geographic area of its operations. The Company's operations have expanded significantly through both internally generated growth and acquisitions, particularly the acquisitions of DMCC and Setpoint in the third quarter of fiscal 1996. This growth has resulted in an increase in the level of responsibility for management personnel. To manage its growth effectively, the Company must continue to implement and improve its operating and financial systems, and to retain and increase its employee base. There can be no assurance that the management systems currently in place will be adequate or that the Company will be able to manage the Company's recent or future growth successfully, and any failure to do so could have a material adverse effect on the Company's business, operating results and financial condition. See "Item 7. Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations--Results of Operations" in the Annual Report.

International Operations. The Company derived more than 50% of its revenues from customers outside the United States in fiscal 1995 and 1997 and approximately 45% of its revenues from customers outside the United States in fiscal 1996. The Company anticipates that revenues from customers outside the United States will continue to account for a significant portion of its total revenues in the foreseeable future. The Company's operations outside the United States are subject to certain risks, including unexpected changes in regulatory requirements, exchange rates, tariffs and other barriers, political and economic instability, difficulties in managing distributors or representatives, difficulties in staffing and managing foreign subsidiary operations, difficulties or delays in translating products and product documentation into foreign languages, and potentially adverse tax consequences. There can be no assurance that any of these factors will not have a material adverse effect on the Company's business, operating results and financial condition.

The impact of future exchange rate fluctuations on the Company's financial condition and results of operations cannot be accurately predicted. In recent years, the Company has increased the extent to which it denominates arrangements with customers outside the United States in the currencies of the country in which the software or services are provided. From time to time the Company has engaged in, and may continue to engage in, hedges of a significant portion of installment contracts denominated in foreign currencies. There can be no assurance that any hedging policies implemented by the Company will be successful or that the cost of such hedging techniques will not have a significant impact on the Company's business, results of operations or financial condition. See "Item 7. Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations" in the Annual Report.

Risks Associated With Future Acquisitions. To expand its markets, the Company's business strategy includes growth through additional acquisitions. Identifying and pursuing acquisition opportunities and integrating acquired products and businesses requires a significant amount of management time and skill. There can be no assurance that the Company will be able to identify suitable acquisition candidates, consummate any acquisition on acceptable terms or successfully integrate any acquired business into the Company's operations. There also can be no assurance that any future acquisition will not have an adverse effect upon the Company's operating results, particularly in the fiscal quarters immediately following consummation of the acquisition while the acquired business is being integrated into the Company's operations. As a result of acquisitions, the Company may encounter unexpected liabilities and contingencies associated with the acquired businesses. The Company may use Common Stock or Preferred Stock or may incur additional long-term indebtedness or a combination thereof for all or a portion of the consideration to be paid in future acquisitions. The issuance of Common Stock or Preferred Stock in acquisitions could result in dilution to existing Stockholders, while the use of cash reserves or significant debt financing to fund acquisitions could reduce the Company's liquidity.

Potential Volatility of Stock Price. The stock market has from time to time experienced extreme price and volume fluctuations, particularly in the high technology sector, and those fluctuations have often been unrelated to the operating performance of particular companies. In addition, factors such as announcements of technological innovations or new products by the Company or its competitors, as well as market conditions in the computer software or hardware industries, may have a significant impact on the market price of the Company's Common Stock.

Effect of Certain Charter and By-Law Provisions and Anti-Takeover Provisions; Possible Issuances of Preferred Stock. The Company's Restated Articles of Organization, its By-Laws and certain Massachusetts laws contain provisions that may discourage acquisition bids for the Company and that may reduce the temporary fluctuations in the trading price of the Company's Common Stock which are caused by accumulations of stock, thereby depriving Stockholders of certain opportunities to sell their stock at temporarily higher prices or receive a premium for their shares as part of an acquisition of the Company. Preferred Stock may be issued by the Company in the future without Stockholders approval and upon such terms as the Board of Directors may determine. The rights of the holders of Common Stock will be subject to, and may be adversely affected by, the rights of the holders of any Preferred Stock that may be issued in the future. The issuance of Preferred Stock, while providing desirable flexibility in connection with possible acquisitions and other corporate purposes, could have the effect of making it more difficult for a third party to acquire, or of discouraging a third party from acquiring, a majority of the outstanding stock of the Company. The Company has no present plans to issue any shares of Preferred Stock. In addition, on October 9, 1997, the Board of Directors of the Company declared a dividend of one Right for each outstanding share of Common Stock. These Rights have certain anti-takeover effects and will cause substantial dilution to a person or group that attempts to acquire the Company without either conditioning an offer on substantially all of the Rights being acquired or obtaining the prior approval of the Board of Directors of the Company. For a more complete description of the Rights, see the Company's Current Report on Form 8-K dated October 9, 1997, which is incorporated by reference herein.

USE OF PROCEEDS

The Company will not receive any proceeds from the sale of Common Stock by the Selling Stockholders, nor will any such proceeds be available for use by the Company or otherwise for the Company's benefit. See "Selling Stockholders."

SELLING STOCKHOLDERS

The following table sets forth certain information with respect to the beneficial ownership of the Company's Common Stock by the Selling Stockholders as of November 3, 1997 and as adjusted to reflect the sale of the shares of Common Stock offered hereby. PLAN OF DISTRIBUTION

This Prospectus and the Registration Statement are in furtherance of a "shelf" registration pursuant to Rule 415 promulgated by the Commission under the Securities Act. Pursuant to registration rights arrangements entered into with the Selling Stockholders, the Company is obligated to keep the "shelf" registration effective until all of the shares offered have been sold, subject to suspension by AspenTech in certain events.

The shares offered hereby may be sold from time to time by the Selling Stockholders, or by pledgees, donees, transferees or other successors in interest of the Selling Stockholders. Such sales may be made on the Nasdaq National Market, or otherwise, at prices and on terms then prevailing or at prices related to the then-current market prices, or in negotiated transactions at negotiated prices. The shares may be sold by one or a combination of the following: (a) a block trade in which the broker or dealer so engaged will attempt to sell the shares as agent, but may position and resell a portion of the block as principal to facilitate the transaction; (b) purchases by a broker or dealer as principal and resale by such broker or dealer for its account pursuant to this Prospectus; and (c) ordinary brokerage transactions and transactions in which the broker solicits purchasers. In effecting sales, brokers or dealers engaged by the Selling Stockholders may arrange for other brokers or dealers to participate. Brokers or dealers will receive commissions or discounts from Selling Stockholders in amounts to be negotiated immediately prior to the sale. The Selling Stockholders and any broker-dealers that participate in the distribution may be deemed to be "underwriters" within the meaning of Section 2(11) of the Securities Act, and any commission received by them and any profit on the resale of shares sold by them may be deemed to be underwriting discounts and commissions.

Upon the Company being notified by the Selling Stockholders that any material arrangement has been entered into with a broker-dealer for the sale of shares through a block trade, special offering, exchange distribution or secondary distribution or a purchase by a broker or dealer, a supplemented prospectus will be filed, if required, pursuant to Rule 424(c) under the Securities Act, setting forth (i) the name of each of the participating broker-dealers, (ii) the number of shares involved, (iii) the price at which such shares were sold, (iv) the commissions paid or discounts or concessions allowed to such broker-dealers, where applicable, (v) a statement to the effect that such broker-dealers did not conduct any investigation to verify the information set out or incorporated by reference in this Prospectus and (vi) other facts material to the transaction.

ITEM 17. UNDERTAKINGS

(a) The undersigned Registrant hereby undertakes:

- (1) To file, during any period in which offers or sales are being made, a post-effective amendment to this Registration Statement;
 - (i) To include any prospectus required to Section 10(a)(3) of the Securities Act of 1933;
 - (ii) To reflect in the prospectus any facts or events arising after the effective date of the Registration Statement (or the most recent post-effective amendment thereof) which, individually or in the aggregate, represent a fundamental change in the information set forth in the Registration Statement; and

- (iii) To include any material information with respect to the plan of distribution not previously disclosed in the Registration Statement or any material change to such information in the Registration Statement;

provided, however, that paragraphs (a)(1)(i) and (a)(1)(ii) do not apply if the registration statement is on Form S-3, Form S-8, and the information required to be included in a post-effective amendment by those paragraphs is contained in periodic reports filed by the Registrant pursuant to Section 13 or Section 15(d) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 that are incorporated by reference in this Registration Statement.

- (2) That, for the purpose of determining any liability under the Securities Act of 1933, each such post-effective amendment shall be deemed to be a new registration statement relating to the securities offered therein, and the offering of such securities at that time shall be deemed to be the initial bona fide offering thereof.

- (b) The undersigned Registrant hereby undertakes that, for purposes of determining any liability under the Securities Act of 1933, each filing of the Registrant's annual report pursuant to Section 13(a) or Section 15(d) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 that is incorporated by reference to the Registration Statement shall be deemed to be a new registration statement relating to the securities offered therein, and the offering of such securities at that time shall be deemed to be the initial bona fide offering thereof.
- (c) Insofar as indemnification for liabilities arising under the Securities Act of 1933 may be permitted to directors, officers and controlling persons of the Registrant pursuant to the foregoing provisions, or otherwise, the Registrant has been advised that in the opinion of the Securities and Exchange Commission such indemnification is against public policy as expressed in the Act and is, therefore, unenforceable. In the event that a claim for indemnification against such liabilities (other than the payment by the Registrant of expenses incurred or paid by a director, officer or controlling person of the Registrant in the successful defense of any action, suit or proceeding) is asserted by such director, officer or controlling person in connection with the securities being registered, the Registrant will, unless in the opinion of its counsel the matter has been settled by controlling precedent, submit to a court of appropriate jurisdiction the question whether such indemnification by it is against public policy as expressed in the Act and will be governed by the final adjudication of such issue.

AspenTech agrees, if necessary, to supplement or make amendments to the Shelf Registration, if required by the registration form used by AspenTech for the Shelf Registration or by the instructions applicable to such registration form or by the Securities Act or the rules or regulations thereunder.
